Reactions which involve heat energy being released into the surrounding environment are called exothermic reactions. By contrast, endothermic reactions draw heat energy from their surroundings. This causes the temperature of the surrounding environment to decrease. Exothermic vs Endothermic Reactions Lab Worksheets heat or may even be explosive. There are other chemical reactions that must absorb energy in order to proceed. These are endothermic reactions. Endothermic reactions cannot occur spontaneously. Work must be done in order to get these reactions to occur.

In the lab, exothermic reactions produce

In the above experiment you will observe that a heated carbon reacts with oxygen present in the glass jar to form carbon dioxide and release energy (An exothermic reaction). This conversion may be represented as in a equation:  $C + O_2 = CO_2$

Every chemical reaction (versus a physical reaction) undergoes a molecular change that can be evidenced by the creation of or the removal of heat, production of a gas (fizzing), by a color change, or by the production of odor, light

Most endothermic reactions contain toxic chemicals, but this reaction is safe and easy. Indeed, this experiment requires no toxic chemicals -- a rarity in chemistry studies. Use it as a demonstration or vary the amounts of citric acid and sodium bicarbonate to make an experiment.

In exothermic reactions the temperature goes up, in endothermic reactions the temperature goes down. In this experiment, various reactions are examined.

Temperatures are measured to decide whether a particular reaction is exothermic or endothermic This is a useful class
